Navigating the Waters of Change: A journey through the New World of T&I

From T&I pricing strategies to technical issues in RSI, to dealing with clients and collaborating with colleagues, a lot has changed since the first quarter of 2020. We'll explore practical scenarios on these and related topics, approaches to solving different issues, and tips for successfully navigating the changing tides in our profession.

Daniela Guanipa is an international conference interpreter and ATA-certified translator. She has devoted 25 years of her professional life to the art of crafting effective and compelling messages, whether as a translator, editor, or interpreter. She is a founding member of the Spanish Editors Association and a founding member and contributor of ATA's blog The Savvy Newcomer. Daniela is an experienced educator who has taught Spanish at different levels and settings, including for government and law enforcement agencies, and high-level executives. As a certified court interpreter, she is a former interpreter trainer for the Indiana Court Certification Program, and currently co-teaches a highly successful advanced translation skills course online.
